MEMOIR

WRITING

Course Description:

A noncredit memoir writing workshop for seniors or other adults that focuses on three creative nonfiction “genres”:

1. a profile of the soul of a person or a place;
2. a memory of an event, and
3. a few meditations using two or three lyrical forms.

We will follow the writing process of invention, drafting, reviewing, commenting and revising, and will read examples of each genre that will function as models for student writing. Concepts about writing the memoir will be discussed. The course will be run as a workshop, in which students will write and share their writing. Students will also need to spend time outside of class in drafting and revising.

Method of Payment:

Check payable to Framingham State College

A $20.00 fee will be charged for a check returned unpaid by the bank.

Major Course Objectives:

1. To help students understand the definitions and attributes of memoir writing and to acquaint them with some of the most important writers within the genre.
2. To help improve students' ability to "tell the truth" through their writing by practicing various techniques of memoir writing.
3. To give students practice in writing diverse styles of memoir genres as they work toward identifying their own favorite subjects and style of writing.
4. To help students' prose mature.
5. To help hone students' critical eye through the practices of close reading / discussion of memoir exemplars and through supportive peer review.
6. To help students learn to write polished prose through the practice of careful and deliberate revision.
