B. Student-in-the-Spotlight: Basma Hassanin

Basma Hassanin was introduced by Dr. Anne Roberti, Director of the English Language Programs and Community Education. Dr. Roberti is also a Visiting Associate Professor in the Division of Graduate Studies and Continuing Education.

Basma was born and raised in Cairo, Egypt, where she earned a BA in Pharmaceutical Sciences at Ain Shams University. Basma spoke of her grandmother and aunt, and how their passing significantly impacted decisions on her career and educational endeavors. She began her professional journey while earning her undergraduate degree and working in a community pharmacy. After graduating, she joined Sigma-Tec as a quality assurance specialist.

Basma began studying in the Masters in Health Administration program at FSU in the Spring of 2022. Initially, her decision to attend FSU was influenced by the location – her brother lives in Massachusetts. However, the affordability, the welcome she felt as being part of the fRAMily, and the faculty, with their first-hand field experience, are qualities that she also attributes to her decision to study at the University.

Basma thanked her professors, Claudine Guild, for being so wonderful and supportive, and Stephen Lemire, for pushing her to get the best work out of her. Basma noted, that for her, attending FSU wasn’t just about getting a degree, but rather her education would allow her to foster innovation, as well as to promote and inspire change. After completing her degree, Basma is planning to work in Quality Assurance in hospitals or drug manufacturing.

Basma continued by speaking about her life on campus. She noted that life can be lonely for international students, and thus she immersed herself in the community by searching for jobs on campus. Basma began by working for the University Police Department, where she still works, and serves as a Student Worker Team Leader. She worked in the ESL program, where she was able to meet students like herself. She has served on hiring committees, and continues to serve on the graduate student counsel, allowing her to focus on helping other graduate students succeed. Basma was the “face of FSU”. You may see her on new promotional materials for the University.

Basma is also currently serving as a graduate assistant to the Center for Inclusive Excellence (CIE). She noted that she connects strongly with the CIE’s mission to foster an environment of safety and inclusivity, where everyone feels a sense of belonging. She stated that when thinking of inclusivity, Jerome Burke and Emma Laurie’s images immediately come to mind. That their embodiment of diversity and acceptance serves as a testament to the values upheld by FSU.

In closing Basma stated, in each of these roles, that her goal has been to make a positive impact on the lives of others, and to be remembered as a kind person.

Trustee Hubbard asked Dale Hamel to continue the report with a budget update. Dale Hamel reported on the following, pages 37 – 44:
- Assumptions driven by state support:
  - Funding for collective bargaining rate increases. ANF has provided parameters for the current contracts that are under negotiation. They were made at a higher rate than what we had originally assumed, but begins in January, ultimately resulting in less cost than anticipated.
  - Base case scenario for the FY’25 budget will use a 2% assumption for formula funding; the House budget is anticipated to be released prior to the April 23 BOT Finance Committee meeting.
  - Enrollment projections, considering the new figures, will still result in 2% aggregate decline in enrollment; increases to come in the out years.
  - Adjusting base case scenarios at net income results at a 1% and 3% state funding were reviewed, page 43:
    - Revised collective bargaining and enrollment projections will impact planning based on these items.

Trustee Hubbard added that there is a line item included in the budget for strategic initiatives and the committee was presented with several scenarios, but the use of reserve funding which was considered for FY’24, has been significantly reduced. Less favorable scenarios were also presented, and the Executive Team are considering several steps to reduce the deficit.

Dale Hamel clarified that the impact will be more significant in the out years, FY26 and beyond.
A larger conversation regarding state funding for higher education was held. Dale Hamel commented that he anticipates that there will be funding from the Fair Share Act. Although it will not impact the operating budget, but will be beneficial for student aid and capital support.

Dale Hamel concluded his report by discussing the following:
- Bond restructuring impact will reduce debt service for FY ’24 and largely eliminated deficit in residence halls and, reduce and normalizing costs in FY ’25.
- Update on the proposal for the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) property: a meeting with the mayor of Framingham has been scheduled. DCR has also requested a meeting.
