- Provost/VP of Academic Affairs and VP of Diversity, Inclusion, and Community Engagement searches are advancing.
  - The search committee chairs have been appointed.
- COVID Updates:
  - Classes for the spring 2022 began remotely for the first two weeks. Classes will resume in person beginning the week of January 31.
  - COVID positivity rates are moving in the right direction. At the highest levels, the positivity rate was at 6%, compared to the state and community rate, which was at 11%.
- In honor of the late Trustee Richard Logan, the FSU Gymnasium will be renamed the “Richard “Dick” Logan ’70 Gymnasium”.
  - The family of Richard Logan and the FSU community will be invited for a naming ceremony to take place in April.

Dr. Lorretta Holloway provided the following Diversity, Inclusion, and Community Engagement (DICE) Report:

- DICE will sponsor eight Employee Affinity Groups for the spring ‘22 – Board of Trustees materials, page 29
- The Director of the Center for Inclusive Excellence (CIE) led two workshops as part of this year’s Center for Excellence in Teaching, Learning, Scholarship, and Service (CELTSS) professional development day in January.
- CIE has solicited student artwork for its Art Purchase Award, using grant funding from the Sudbury Foundation’s Racial Equity Mini-Grant.
  - Artwork is due early February. Artists will be notified of selection in March, with a celebratory event taking place on March 31, 2022.

Eric Gustafson reported the following on Development and Alumni Relations:

- Fundraising efforts have raised $1.27M as of this month for the FY ‘22.
  - Notable gifts include:
    - A five-year, $250K commitment to fund scholarships for incoming students in education.
    - $25K gift to establish a new endowed scholarship fund for education students doing their student teaching.
- Continued offering a mix of in-person and virtual events and engagement opportunities for alumni and friends, with in-person numbers continuing to be lower due to COVID-19.
- Development and Alumni Relations will be hosting a number of regional events this spring, highlighted by the annual series of events in Florida (March 12-15).
- The Danforth Art Museum’s current special exhibits will be up until the beginning of March.
  - “Drop into Art” programs for children and families are held on the second Sunday of each month.
  - The Art School had a successful fall program cycle and winter registrations have thus far been positive.
Students are now required to be vaccinated to attend in-person classes.

- A new scholarship fund has been secured for students (both youth and adults) with financial need to allow them to take classes at the Art School.
- Registration is currently open for the School’s Summer Arts program for youth and teens.

President Cevallos invited Dr. Robert Awkward to introduce the Student-in-the-Spotlight, Erika Maurer.

Dr. Awkward first expressed his gratitude for all that President Cevallos has done, as he will be retiring at the end of the academic year. He praised the President for his impact on the institution, and his leadership, which has been instrumental in putting Framingham State on the map among the public institutions across the state.

Dr. Awkward continued with an introduction of Erika Maurer. As a student in his class, the Foundations of Human Resources Management, Dr. Awkward noted that Erika made an immediate impression. She was very inquisitive and engaged. In his time getting to know her, he has learned that Erika is a very humble person, but he sees her as a very special individual.

Erika Maurer began by thanking Dr. Awkward for the nomination for the Student-in-the-Spotlight, and for the opportunity to address the Board of Trustees. She continued by explaining that she did not take a traditional path to college. Immediately out of high school, she began working out of necessity. Twelve years later, while a single parent, she became the first female in her family to graduate from college. Her undergraduate degree took her from a job in retail to a career in early education, where for 15 years, she worked as a developmental specialist for early intervention.

Erika continued to grow in her career, as she worked for the Department of Developmental Services. Looking to advance herself within the department she sought to further her education at Framingham State University. As a full-time employee and a busy mother, earning her graduate degree has not been without challenges. However, Erika found that FSU was able to meet her where she was at, on her non-traditional educational path.

Erika highlighted an independent study with Dr. Michele Gibbon-Carr, in which she worked for a semester to develop a diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) strategic plan for Massachusetts organizations offering direct care for individuals with disabilities. The project was designed to remove systemic barriers, allowing for a pathway to leadership opportunities for direct care workers. She added that the independent study provided her with an invaluable experience and her understanding of DEI grew exponentially.

Erika explained that the education and experiences she is gaining at FSU are providing her with information which can be applied in her daily work, but moreover, it is providing her with a skillset to grow professionally. When she began the Masters of Human Resources program, she held the position of service coordinator; she has since been promoted twice. Erika now serves as a regional program coordinator of a highly visible acquired brain injury department.

Erika described the FSU graduate program as one that is full of hardworking professionals from various industries, with very diverse backgrounds, and yet, at FSU they share one goal – to learn and grow as a class. In conclusion, Erika stated that she believes that if you have the desire to learn and advance that FSU provides the opportunities to do so.
