Poverty, Trauma, and Homelessness: Supporting All Students So They Can Achieve

Framingham State University

Course Number and Title: PRDV74228 Poverty, Trauma, and Homelessness: Supporting All Students So They Can Achieve
Credit: 1
Format: Online Using FSU Blackboard
Instructor: Jeff Weinstein, MEd
Email: jweinstein@framingham.edu

Course Description:
This course provides a research-based overview of how being disadvantaged affects a student’s ability to learn and excel in the classroom. Disadvantaged students have various factors that negatively affect their ability to learn in school. These factors may be based around family, economic, or social issues. In this course, we will take an in-depth examination of poverty, homelessness, trauma and other issues that affect children’s ability to learn. We will also discuss what happens to a child’s brain when they are exposed to these circumstances. Most importantly, we will learn what we can do to support them and help them achieve at high levels.

Learning Outcomes/Course Objectives:
At the end of this course, successful students will be able to:
1. Explain what disadvantages students may face and how they hinder a child’s ability to learn.
2. Summarize disadvantaged student and poverty data from within his/her own district.
3. Explain how poverty, homelessness, and trauma effects a child’s development.
4. Explain how poverty, homelessness, and trauma negatively effects a child’s ability to learn.
5. Explain how to support disadvantaged students socially and emotionally.
6. Discuss how my personal teaching practices will change as a result of taking this course.

MA Comprehensive Health Curriculum Framework
Social and Emotional Health Strand: All Grade Levels
- Mental Health
- Family Life
- Interpersonal Relationships

Course Expectations:
- Participation in each weekly module is mandatory.
Poverty, Trauma, and Homelessness: Supporting All Students So They Can Achieve

- Completion of all preparation work, assignments, and discussion board reflections is expected. There will be weekly reading, videos to watch, reflections to complete, and two writing assignments. Please post your ideas, successes, and frustrations, as well as your takeaways from the readings and videos each week in the discussion area.
- Being part of a successful online course requires you to read and respond to your peer’s ideas and posts. Each week, it is expected that in addition to your own posts, you respond to at least two posts by your classmates.
- All assignments are expected to be completed on time. See the rubric for assignment grading criteria.

Please post responses to discussion board prompts weekly and respond to at least two other postings to develop our learning amongst ourselves. The instructor will also respond to postings, so please keep an eye open for those, as well. In this course, please note that the final two-page paper is due by the last day of the course, so plan accordingly. Contact the instructor via email at any time with any questions or concerns.

Two points will be deducted for each assignment that is submitted late. Course grades are based on the following rubric:
