

Tamara Hussein Tarhini '20

Social Worker

What drew me to the Master of Education with a concentration in Educational Technology program was the opportunity to do it completely online. Even with relocating with my family between Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and the Netherlands, I was able to progress in my graduate studies.

I can say that the online courses have brought a breadth of knowledge to both my personal and professional life. The type of online-learning provided was ideal. It was flexible in terms of timings, professors were very supportive, and endless learning opportunities were delivered.

The M.Ed. in Educational Technology program has provided me the foundation I need to start my career. As I walk away at the completion of my Master's Degree, I like to think of it as the beginning and not the end.